

Web Site Structure

Overview

The website www.mycanyonvista.com is hosted on a domain server which offers a wide range of features including webmail, applications, databases plus significant storage space for files.

When you enter the site, you are shown the main index page which contains clickable links to all the available features. It is recommended to bookmark this page on your browser so that you can call it up at any time. From here, you can easily access any part of the web site.

To help the new user understand the website structure, it helps to think of the website as being a large file cabinet with many drawers. Each drawer represents a feature that the user can access. Each drawer then contains many "file folders" for the user to view and in many cases interact with.

To navigate around the site, select a feature from the main menu (Forum, Classifieds, etc.) or sidebar menu (Privacy, Emergency #s, etc). To go to a different part of the website, simply return to the main index page.

An alternate method to navigate around the site is to use Hyperlinks that you will find on webpages and in forum topics. These allow the user to go directly to a different "file drawer".
